

We want to thank all of our allies, donors, and supporters for the overwhelming belief in us that you have shown at the beginning of our endeavor.

You may recall that the Rule of Law Society promised you that, as we began spending money, we would let you know exactly where every single penny was going, for what, and why. We also committed that we would only spend your money on mission critical undertakings.

We keep our promises. We want to let you know that, so far, we've only spent money on the basics in properly setting up the organization in the United States: insurance, banking, and appropriate registrations with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) and the various states.

Moving forward, we will continue to keep you updated as we expand on our operations and initiate programs. There is so much to do.

We have one goal – all of us together – to bring justice through the rule of law to the noble people of China. We have faith that through working together as one team, we will make it happen.
